THE LITTLE CLOUD.

A cloud has come between us—you nor I
Have dared, dear heart, to ask the reason why.

Tho' but a little vague and viewless cloud,
I feel it threaten all our joy to shroud.

O heart of mine, remember that love's skies
Are but reflections of your azure eyes!

The little cloud that fills me now with fears
Was born, mayhap, dear heart, of idle tears.

You weep—you say you know not why—and yet
When mists arise bureom love's sun has set!

Love, if you love me, let no cloudlet skim
Athwart my heaven—no tear your eyes bedim.

Lest of a tear be born a cloud, a doubt
To grow and grow till joy be blotted out!

—Mary Norton Bradford in St. Louis Republic.

LIEUT. SWASH'S LOVE

"In love, lieutenant!" I cried, almost starting from my seat, so greatly had he surprised me.

My friend Swash generated a great cloud of smoke in his pipe, and it so enveloped his head that I could not see his face, deeply flushed as it must have been, and from the cloud of gray vapor came the gruff reply:

"Yes, in love, confound it!"

"Oh, how interesting!" exclaimed my wife, dropping her magazine and looking up at my friend and myself, whom she had always previously declared to be most uninteresting when we got together over our pipes.

"It is not very pleasant for me," muttered Swash. He was greatly embarrassed and fixed his eyes pensively on the floor.

"What is her name?" I asked.

"I don't know," he answered brusquely.

"Where does she live?" ventured my wife.

"Don't know that."

"Where did you meet her?" said I.

"Can't tell that either, Dockboy. Don't think me disagreeable. If I could, I would gladly answer your questions. Indeed, I wish that I was able to."

"Your case is truly a strange one," I said. "Is this young woman purely an ideal, a mental creature of your own? You have been melancholy enough of late to have been sighing for something more material."

"She is not a mere creation of my imagination," replied the lieutenant solemnly. "She exists—where I don't know. I saw her once a great way off, and she realized all my ideals of the woman I would make Mrs. Swash. And when I saw her, for an instant though it was, I cried to myself: 'Here, Swash, is the woman you have dreamed of all these years. That soft, intellectual face, those soulful eyes, they belong to the woman you have been waiting for.' Then she was gone, from where and whither I don't know, for I can't tell where I saw her."

Swash sent a beautiful ring of smoke circling upward toward the ceiling, and on it he fixed his eyes, watching it as it swung away into the air, became thinner and thinner and finally disappeared, and where it had been he kept his gaze fixed so that it seemed that he was looking off into space, unconscious of our presence. My wife glanced meaningly at me, as though she suspected that our visitor's mind was either permanently or temporarily deranged.

"Your case is really most remarkable," I said. "Explain. Don't surround yourself with such an air of mystery. It would relieve you to confide your troubles in us. Perhaps we could help you."

"Yes, indeed," cried my wife enthusiastically. "Perhaps we can help you."

Swash started. "Ah, yes. Where did I leave off? Perhaps you can—indeed, yes."

"Perhaps we can assist you," I repeated.

"I think not, Dockboy," he said, having recovered himself. "For my case is truly remarkable. I have swept the skies with a telescope and cannot find her. I have walked the streets day and night, scrutinizing thousands of windows, and still have not a trace of her. You see, I saw her under the most peculiar circumstances, but see her I did, and I lost my heart. From a satisfied bachelor of 50 I have been metamorphosed into a lovelorn, disappointed, unhappy—I can't get a word to fit my case."

"Your use of a telescope is queer," I interrupted. "I have suspected all along that you saw her in the skies."

"You have guessed my secret," he said mournfully. "It happened that one night about a month ago I was walking down Broadway on the way home to my boarding house," continued my friend. "It seems to me that I had been up here to see you. At Fortieth street, as ill luck would have it, I ran across one of those itinerant astronomers who had set up a telescope on the pavement and hung out a small sign calling attention to the fact that Saturn and its rings could be seen for 5 cents. Business looked dull and I kind of pitied the poor fellow. It had never been my fortune to gaze at Saturn and her rings, so I stepped up, gave him a nickel and fixed my eye on the end of the instrument. At first all was blackness. 'I can't see any rings,' said I. 'The lens is not adjusted,' replied the astronomer. And with that he began to turn a lot of screws. The blackness gave way to a hazy, gray light, that I suspected was from a theater across the street, but I said nothing and strained my optic nerve to make out the planet. It was of no use. I withdrew my eye and complained. The astronomer then discovered that the telescope was pointed wrong, and he looked through it, lowered one end and gave it a turn.

"My eye was at the instrument again, but no change was visible in the make up of the heavens beyond a marked increase of light. Once more I complained, and the man declared I must be nearsighted. 'Look harder,' he said, giving the machine a little twist. And I looked harder, but instead of Saturn I saw clearly a woman—my ideal, she whom for years I had pictured in my smoking moments. There she was, sitting at a window, one arm resting on the sill, her hand on her chin, her eyes looking directly into mine. Even in the half light every feature was clearly discernible. There was the soft black hair waving across a white forehead, the eyes, deep and full of immeasurable good things, the nose, the mouth—everything that I had been seeking for. I gave an exclamation of joy.

"'You see her now, sir? Does the rings show up good?' This remark from the astronomer brought to mind a forgotten fact. I saw her through a telescope. Where was that window that I could seek her out? I had found her. Better never to have seen her than under such appalling conditions. There she was gazing calmly at me from the other end of a long tube. I could almost touch her and reached out my hand.

"'Hold on, there!' cried the astronomer. 'You'll upset the machine.'

"My involuntary movement to embrace what was not there did indeed disarrange the apparatus, and so badly that she disappeared, and where she had been a star was winking at me. As if I cared for stars!

"I paid for one more look at Saturn, but could find nothing. In vain I swept the skies and the housetops [illegible] windows with the telescope and with my naked eye. She had vanished. I went home disconsolate. As surely as I sit here, Dockboy, I saw her. It was not a hallucination. She was sitting in a real window within the range of that telescope, but where I don't know and perhaps never will know. My ideal has become a reality, but under what trying circumstances. Do you wonder that I am miserable."

"I surely do not," I said, "if what you have said is true and not a mere imagination."

"How romantic!" cried my wife.

Lieutenant Swash sighed.

"Come," I said, rising from my chair, "we will go together, and perhaps I can help you. I will have a look at Saturn."

Not long afterward my friend and I were at the corner from which he had viewed his ideal in the flesh. The itinerant astronomer was there, too, with his telescope pointed heavenward in readiness for use. He greeted my companion pleasantly and apparently had been expecting him.

"Maybe you'll see that planet you've been looking for tonight," he said. "I've cleaned off the lenses so they'll work better."

"Planet! Beautiful luminary rather," muttered the lieutenant, stopping and screwing his eye into an end of the telescope. "I can see nothing but blackness now. Lower the other end just a little—there." He began adjusting screws with the skill of one initiated into the mysteries of the heavens. While he searched the skies above and the house tops for miles about I scanned the heavens, the house tops and the windows with my naked eye, and with my naked eye I accomplished more than he.

"Allow me to try the glass," I said.

"My dear fellow," he cried, "it is of no use. If I can't find it, after searching every night for weeks, you can't. There is nothing in sight. It's only a question of patience, of waiting until it again appears."

"Let me try," I said peremptorily.

He acceded to my request. With the assistance of the astronomer I got the instrument in the desired position, fixed my eye to it and focused it.

"Pshaw," cried Swash impatiently, "you're looking right down Broadway."

These remarks had no effect on me. I bided my time. At length it came.

"Swash, don't be excited," I said, "but just fix your eye here."

"It's she again," he cried before he had his optic thoroughly adjusted. "You're right, Dockboy; we've got her. Now mark where the telescope points to. Don't lose it. Get the direction."

"Have you read what is below the window?" said I.

"Jove!" he muttered. "'Miss Maxy Mumps, the actress, writes, "I have used Dr. Hoaxer's harmless hair tonic and find it perfection."'"

"We've got her, Swash. We'll spot a window with that sign—why, confound it, she's gone!"

Swash straightened up and seized my hand.

"Dockboy," he whispered so the astonished astronomer would not hear, "I've found her, thanks to you. I can spot her window by that sign if it's within ten miles. Miss Maxy Mumps, the actress"—

"Look again," I said quietly, "and tell me what you see."

Once more he looked, but only for a second.

"Confound it!" he cried. "Am I crazy? I saw a girl in a bicycle and under it letters saying that if you bike you should ride a Dunter."

"Gentlemen," interrupted the astronomer, "I'm afraid you ain't seen Saturn nor no other planet. You was looking at that advertising canvas down Broadway."

Lieutenant Swash has gone to the country for a few days.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

MONEY AND MUSIC.

How Some Famous Composers Were Paid For Their Brilliant Creations.

Handel, had it not been for his oratorios and his operatic speculations, would have lived and died as poor as the proverbial church mouse. Walsh, his publisher, paid him pitiful prices for his operas. For at least 11 of these works he received no more than 25 guineas each, and the largest sum he was ever paid was only £105, which he got for "Alexander's Feast." It must not be thought from these small prices that the composer's works did not sell. On the contrary, they always found a ready market and proved a great source of profit to the publisher. From the proceeds of his first opera, "Rinaldo," Walsh netted a profit of over £1,500, whereupon Handel jocularly remarked to the music seller, "Well, you shall compose the next opera, and I will publish it." Handel, as everybody knows, lost a fortune in trying to establish Italian opera in London, and, although he subsequently more than recouped himself by his oratorios, it was not the publisher, but the public, who put it in his power to do this.

Even when we come down to the time of Mozart, we do not find that the claim of the brain worker to a fair wage had been recognized. It almost staggers one to recall the fact that "Don Giovanni" brought to its composer no more than £20. For "The Magic Flute" he was paid just 100 ducats, and yet the manager of the theater at which the opera was first produced made a fortune out of it. No wonder Mozart had to be laid in a pauper's grave, the very site of which is unknown to this day. Schubert fared even worse. Some of his magnificent songs sold for less than a shilling, and at his decease it was difficult to raise enough money to bury him. Haydn's income would today be deemed small by a player in the theater orchestra, and his "estate" was almost a minus quantity. Weber, who died about 70 years ago, received less than £800 in all for his "Freischutz," one of the most popular operas ever written, while from his five other operas he made only £1,000 altogether. By "The Bohemian Girl" Balfe gained less than £1,500, although the "Marble Halls" ballad in that very popular work put some £2,000 into the pockets of the publishers.—Chambers' Journal.

Tell us Mr. Bryan!

A big part of Mr. Bryan's speeches relates to rosy pictures of how the country would blossom and bloom under free coinage. He tries to show how the silver owner could take his metal to the mint and have it made into dollars that would be worth full value. This private stamp coin would soon find its way into general circulation. He does not state whether it would be given away by the silver kings or put into circulation by other means. He should not fail to tell how people can get sixteen silver dollars for one gold dollar.—Warren Mail.

THE NIMBLE DOLLAR.

How It Will Hop Up and Down When We Have Free Silver.

COST OF LIVING ELSEWHERE

Some Facts of Interest That Should be Carefully Studied.

HOW PRICES ARE GOVERNED.

A Traveler in the East Gives Facts Which are Better Than All the Theories of the Bryan-Altgeld-Tillman Outfit. The Storekeeper Would Have to Put New Prices Upon His Goods Every Day.

Those who so roundly denounce the bankers, especially those residing in London, should stop to think whether they would not be more in the banker's power than ever if free silver ruled the day. Let us see. The present value of silver bullion is governed by the market price in London; hence, one day it might be worth 52 cents, on another day 55 cents, and still on another it might be worth only 50 cents or less. At the present time we have no such fluctuation of the dollar between the time of leaving our offices at night and the time of returning to the same in the morning.

Any one who has been in a country that is on a silver basis, such as Mexico, China, Japan or India, will understand that this is no hypothetical case, but an actual fact, for, as credits are always drawn on London, if a traveler in any one of those countries desires to draw money on his letter of credit he is told that they cannot tell what to charge him until they receive the London rate of exchange, which is based on the market price of silver. During part of the time while I was in Japan exchange was very low, consequent upon rumors of war with Russia, and during those times the price of the Japanese yen, or dollar, dropped, and when the rumors were found to be without foundation exchange rose and the price of the dollar went up. In a week's time its value fluctuated 10 per cent., and in Japan that was no unusual occurrence. Just think of what a commotion that would make here if it should be necessary for a storekeeper to mark over his whole stock of goods every day because the value of the dollar had changed over night.

Since the great decline has taken place in Japan prices for farm produce and merchandise, except during the war, have not risen, but have remained about stationary because of the increased supply, but the price for everything that is purchased outside of Japan in a gold standard country has risen to almost double. Hotel proprietors and those who are forced to buy those articles that are necessary to the conducting of their business, and which are not produced in Japan, have now to pay double what they did before the great decline took place, and yet the hotel proprietors dare not raise the price of their rooms on account of competition. The proprietor of the Grand hotel in Yokohama told me himself that he was making less per day now since silver had declined than before its fall. In Japan the horse is almost an unknown animal as far as transportation purposes are concerned, coolies, both men and women, taking its place. For thirty-eight cents in our money these Japanese runners will pull you in a jinrickisha for ten hours at a pace that would kill almost any horse, and yet these runners stand among the highest paid labor in that country.

There are those in the United States who denounce Wall street as a gambling den, and they claim that the free coinage of silver would lessen the use of Wall street. But the whole population of the United States, if we are on a silver basis, would be compelled to look at the London quotations of silver as cabled to Wall street before a single transaction could be made any day without running the risk of loss.

In India it is the same as in Japan. The rupee originally was worth 50 or 52 cents; today it is approximately worth 30 or 32 cents, and some days it is down to 29 cents or up to 34 cents. Prices there for food products are no higher now than before the decline in silver took place, they being governed by the size of the crops, dependent upon the quantity of rain that falls during the wet season. Railway fares are the same, and the price of an ocean passage to England is invariably the same number of rupees. The railroad and the steamship companies cannot raise their rates, but the traveler who comes from a gold standard country can buy his passage for just about one-half what was formerly charged.

A good coachman can be had in Bombay for 10 rupees, or, say, $3.20, per month, and an excellent house servant and courier for 1 rupee, or 32 cents per day, with an allowance of 4 annas, or 8 cents, a day for his food, and those house servants constitute the highest paid class of labor in India. Those servants are always men, and they commence their day's duties by bringing their master's "chota hazri," or early breakfast, at 7 o'clock in the morning. They help you dress and then proceed to wait upon the table, act as interpreter during your ride, brush your clothes or pipe clay your topee hat when you return and follow you around like a faithful dog on every occasion, pack your trunk, keep off the herds of beggars that hourly annoy you, and when at night you retire they curl themselves up in their blankets and sleep on the mat outside your door, ready to answer your call. This is a fair example of the best paid class of native labor in India.

The English soldiers in India, of whom there are 100,000 and over, bitterly complain that their wages, as now received in rupees, will not permit them to keep their families in England as they used to do before the depreciation took place, and are loudly clamoring for a compensation allowance to make their depreciated wages equivalent to what they formerly received. They claim that while they are paid the same number of rupees per month as formerly, yet it will buy in England only one-half of what it used to buy. This is exactly what would occur to every salaried man, woman or child in this country if the free coinage of silver policy prevailed. Salaries might remain the same, but one-half of the ability of these salaries to buy coffee, tea, sugar and all imported articles would be gone.

Last year there was imported into the United States about $[illegible] worth of products which could be classed as necessaries, and all these things had to be paid for in gold or in exports at gold prices. Now, the price of wheat is governed by the London quotation in Mark lane, consequent upon the supply and crop reports received from the Argentine Republic, India and Russia as well as our west. Now, therefore, if business is so arranged in this country so that there are thousands of men out of work, and those who are at work get paid in depreciated currency these men cannot afford to be as large consumers of the farmer's wheat and pork as they would otherwise be. The farmer, therefore, would have [illegible] of wheat and pork on hand than the very has, and hence, if normal crops prevailed, the price would in all probability decline, as a greater quantity would be offered in Mark lane. Thus he would probably get less for his labor in depreciated currency under silver than he does now, and so have less purchasing power wherewith to buy his coffee, his sugar, his tea and his tobacco, and most of those articles coming from countries that demand gold in payment.—Ernest M. Ackerman in New York Sun.

MR. BRYAN'S RECORD.

Some Facts That Are Worthy of Careful Consideration.

It is a fact which the thinking voter is considering just now, that William J. Bryan does not touch upon the tariff, nor does he refer to the point that his election will mean a continuation of the hard times which have come upon the country as a result of the passage of the Wilson tariff bill—a bill misnamed a measure for revenue, but which produces nothing but a deficit.

Mr. Bryan is eagerly seeking the votes of the farmers, yet on April 7, 1892, he voted in the house in favor of the Springer bill to place wool on the free list, thus striking a blow at every farmer who attempts to diversify his industry by raising sheep. The wool growers of Ohio, of Texas, of the west and southwest, remember this.

On the next day, April 8, 1892, he voted in favor of repealing the duty and admitting free foreign bagging for cotton, machinery for its manufacture, cotton ties and cotton gins. Here he voted against the interest of the workingmen employed in cotton manufacture, or in the building of machinery thereof.

On July 8, 1892, Mr. Bryan voted to reduce the duty on tin plate and to repeal the section of the McKinley law which created the great tin plate industry in the United States. Another blow was then dealt at the workingmen whose votes he now so eagerly seeks!

On May 2, 1892, Mr. Bryan moved to suspend the rules and pass his bill to place binding twine on the free list. He then struck another blow at the workingmen, for hundreds of them found employment in the manufacture of twine. It will not do to say his action was "for the benefit of the farmer," because the price of binding twine is no lower now than it was in 1892. His bill merely gave foreign workmen employment at the expense of the American workmen. It injured the latter, and did not benefit the farmers.

On July 8, 1892, Mr. Bryan voted for the bill to reduce the duty on lead ore, and to discriminate in favor of lead ores containing silver. This bill could not possibly benefit any American workingman. It injured those employed in lead mining and smelting; it injured the men who delve in silver mines. Possibly it helped the men who deal in silver bullion—but certainly not one American workingman.

Mr. Bryan's votes in congress were uniformly in favor of measures whose effect was to reduce the wages of American workingmen, and to diminish the amount of work open to them. He voted to reduce or remove the duties on imported farm products. Is a man who votes steadily to promote foreign interests at the expense of our own to be honored with the highest office in the people's gift, as a reward for such action?

Bryan's votes and his voice have been and are in favor of cheap labor and cheap money—for free trade and free silver.

> ANDREW JACKSON'S EIGHTH ANNUAL MESSAGE.
> "A depreciation of the currency is always attended by a loss to the laboring classes. This portion of the community have neither time nor opportunity to watch the ebbs and flows of the money market. Engaged from day to day in their useful toils, they do not perceive that, although their wages are nominally the same, or even somewhat higher, they are greatly reduced, in fact, by the rapid increase of currency, which, as it appears to make money abound, they are at first inclined to consider a blessing."

There's the Rub.

The question for the workingman to ask himself is, How will the adoption of a silver basis effect me personally? If he has read any of the campaign literature he knows that it is generally admitted, even by the silverites, that the cost of living will advance materially. Our Popocratic friends say, however, that wages will advance correspondingly. But, will they? There's the rub! Is there any likelihood of employers advancing wages when there are half a dozen idle men waiting to take every job in the land at the wages now prevailing? As William McKinley has put it, the cost of living is the first to go up and the rate of wages is the last to stay down.—Pittston Gazette.

A Patent Flycatcher.

A machine for catching flies off the backs of cattle, and so affording the animals relief and comfort, has been invented by a farmer in Madison county, Ky. The flycatcher is a kind of covered pen or passageway through which the animal must walk to secure relief. A few feet from the entrance there is a cupola or dome in the roof of the passageway, made of glass and arranged as a flytrap. Beyond this the passage is darkness. The animal walks through the machine, and just as it passes under the dome and enters the darkened part a set of brushes sweeps off the flies, which naturally rise into the lighted dome, and the steer passes out at the other side free of flies. The flies are retained in the dome trap. The inventor has experimented with his machine and finds that the animals soon learn the value of the machine and know enough to walk through it when the flies begin to bite. The device has been patented.

EXERCISES FOR THE THROAT.

A Branch of Physical Culture that [illegible] Neglected.

The chronic sore throat is not [illegible] quently produced by the misuse of the vocal organs. Very often, [illegible] little member, the tongue, is [illegible] ble for the difficulty, as it is for a [illegible] many other troubles in this [illegible] life. Many people have a habit, when talking, of pushing the tongue [illegible] back against the delicate [illegible] that line the throat that irritation [illegible] or less painful is caused, and if it [illegible] times any length of time [illegible] form, and so will a doctor's bill.

Control of the tongue is [illegible] all senses of the word. Physically this organ may be managed by [illegible] into a hollow at a point [illegible] of an inch back of where the tip of it comes when in a natural position in the mouth and at the same time singing very light head tones. This [illegible] requires some patience at first, but the habit of keeping the tongue down is soon acquired. In speaking or singing it should not be allowed to hump up and fill the mouth, thus interfering with the free passage of the tones of the voice from the throat to the front of the mouth, where they should strike and then escape clear as a bell. This heaping up of the tongue in the mouth is the cause of much of the indistinct and slovenly utterances to which we are too often obliged to listen.

In many people we notice the line from the point of the chin to the neck is in the form of a right angle. In a shapely throat this line forms a curve just as a canary's does when the small yellow artist is warbling his carols.

To develop the throat and make this angle a curve, stand before a mirror so that you may watch the chin [illegible] out. Now thrust your tongue out as far as it will go, then draw it back quickly and forcibly, at the same time bringing it downward in the mouth as far as you can. Place your thumb and forefinger against the larynx (commonly called the Adam's apple), and if you are doing the right movement you will feel the larynx pass downward. For a week or two make the movements [illegible] After that time put as much force into it as you can. The exercise should be practiced for a few minutes several times a day to insure rapid and good results.

To fill up the hollows of the neck, stand correctly, and then slowly fill the lungs with air without elevating your shoulders. As the air is forced upward into the throat hold it there a few seconds and then expel slowly. This exercise is best performed soon after rising in the morning and before retiring at night.—New York Post.

THE OLDEST LOCK.

The very oldest lock in existence is one which formerly secured one of the doors of a palace of Nineveh. It is a gigantic affair, and the key to it, which is as large as one man can conveniently carry, reminds one of the Scriptural passage where the prophet makes reference to such instruments being carried on the shoulder. The exact words in the passage referred to are, "And the key of the house of David I will lay upon his shoulder."

This enormous key to the lock from Nineveh is nearly 3½ feet in length and of the thickness of a four inch drain tile. It was found at the end of a ruined chamber, where a large wooden door had probably once stood, the [illegible] brass hinges and heavy bars being still in fair condition, though somewhat corroded. This relic of the olden times has but few points of resemblance to the keys of modern manufacture, or even to those of the early part of the Christian era. The tubular idea had never been thought out in those days, but the key is fearfully and wonderfully made, being equally as intricate a piece of machinery as the lock for which it was used. A great many of the keys and pegs in the lock are believed to have been made of wood, as their places are now empty. The notches and pegs in the key, however, show that there were corresponding pegs and bars in the lock at one time. The great lateral bar found at the end of the key, with [illegible] plicated series of [illegible], [illegible] bumps, are proof that the lock was once similarly provided. This being the case, it is reasonable to suppose that at one time the door to that palace could not have been opened until the key had been inserted and the [illegible] the drawing back of the bolt effected by raising up so many [illegible] which had fallen down, than [illegible] upon the keyhole has been [illegible]. Similar locks and keys were in use in Egypt 4,000 years ago.—St. Louis Republic.

MAINE has followed the noble example set by the Green Mountain State.

REPUBLICANS, see that the taxes of every Republican voter are paid 30 days before election.

THE Republican county convention last spring nominated an excellent ticket. Every man on that ticket should be elected by over two thousand majority.

THE Republicans of McKean county should use the utmost diligence to see that every candidate on the Republican ticket is elected by largely increased majorities.

BRO. LATIMER you mistake Mr. Sulliyan's position. He is a candidate for Congress on the Democratic ticket in the 25th district, and not for State Senator in the 25th district.

No voter who has not paid a State or county tax within the past two years is entitled to a vote. Call the attention of your Republican neighbor to the fact and urge him to make due preparation.

THE Democratic party is in such a chaotic state that they remind one of the descendants of Noah when they attempted to build the Tower of Babel. They are all talking in different tongues and have so many different ideas that not one of them can tell where they are at. Most of them carry brick where mortar is needed.

A PROMINENT merchant was a caller at this office recently and during his visit touched upon the political situation. He said, "If the anticipation of Bryan's election had such a depressing effect upon business, what would the reality be?" However, the people are beginning to get their eyes open to the dangerous state of affairs, and will cast their votes for McKinley.

BRO. LATIMER as usual is again off in his assertions. He accuses the MINER of advocating the election of Mr. Connoly. The MINER will use all honorable means to defeat Mr. Connoly and elect the whole Republican ticket. Because "Party Worker" saw fit in his communication to speak of Mr. Connoly in an honorable way it does not follow that the MINER will support Mr. Connoly.

WE briefly mention the fact that Maine has gone Republican by the largest majority ever cast in the State. Her four Representatives in Congress were elected by majorities ranging from 10,000 to 13,000. There are only eight Democratic Representatives in the State Legislature and not one Democratic State Senator. Hurrah for Maine. She has spoken for sound money, protection and good government.

THE verdict of the State of Maine will have a tendency to cause the withdrawal of the name of Arthur Sewall as a candidate for the Vice-Presidential honors on the Popocratic ticket. The irrepressible Tom Watson of Georgia will undoubtedly be Bryan's running mate. As both are well supplied with wind and the gift of gab there is no question but what they will say something ere the campaign closes that will annihilate them both.

IF the Arkansas Democratic majority keeps on shrinking the State may be counted in the Republican column by November. The 70,000 majority of last week has fallen to 38,000. A falling off of almost one-half will be rather discouraging news to Bryan, but, like the Dutchman who cut off the dog's tail by inches to get him accustomed to the pain, this majority decrease in Arkansas will accustom Bryan to the crushing defeat that he is destined to suffer in November.

THE McKinley club of Farmers Valley held another meeting last Saturday night. Hon. R. R. Stone of Bradford addressed the club in his usual forcible style. As a result of his efforts the membership of the club was increased from 71 to 138. All honor to the Republicans of Farmers Valley. These meetings clearly demonstrate that the majority of the residents in that section are not to be led away by the glittering promises (that will never be realized) of free silverites.

IN 1892 Democratic stump speakers were shouting, elect Cleveland and we will give you $1.00 wheat. Cleveland was elected and everybody knows what the price of wheat is at the present time. The Democratic free silver orators with Bryan are stumping the country and trying to deceive the people by telling them if Bryan is elected silver will go up to $1.29 per ounce. Does anyone with a cent's worth of horse sense expect that such nonsense will ever be brought about? 'Tis folly for Democrats to argue along that line, for they know better, but they have fooled the people many times with their promises and hope to again.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

(From our Special Correspondent.)

WASHINGTON Sept. 14, 1896.—Who will muzzle Tom Watson? That is just now the question of questions at every conclave held at popocratic headquarters. Watson has been autocratic in all his dealings with the members of the Populist national committee as Bryan is with the members of the Democratic committee, and his demand that Sewall be taken off the Bryan ticket to make room for him has reached a stage where it can no longer be ignored. The popocratic managers have got to do something very soon and they are at a loss to choose. Their original intention was to bunco Watson, and there is reason to believe that Senator Butler chairman of the Populist national committee, was a party to the intention but Watson has succeeded in stirring up the Populists in portions of the south and west to such an extent that the Popocrats have lost their nerve and are now in doubt about what to do, and bets have been made that they will wind up by throwing Sewall overboard. They would probably have done so before now if they did not hope for a lot of Sewall's money and if they had not been afraid of its effect in the east. After the New York convention meets this week the last fear will not count. They know that they haven't a ghost of a chance to carry an eastern State, but they want the moral effect in other States of a declaration in favor of Bryan and Sewall by the New York Democratic convention.

Good news continues to be about the only kind received at the Republican headquarters. It comes from every section and indicates that the reaction against the free and independent coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1 by this government is steadily becoming stronger, even in States into which the Republican managers have sent neither literature nor speakers because they believed them hopelessly given up to free silver sentiment. This is, of course pleasing, but no rainbow chasing is being done by Republicans, their efforts are being confined to States which they have a reasonable right to believe can be carried by McKinley and Hobart.

The calm dispassionate legal like open letter which Attorney General Harmon made public several days ago is by far the most important utterance that has come from the administration against Bryan's anarchistic tendencies, not excepting the letter from Mr. Cleveland. Mr. Harmon's letter deals exclusively with that clause of the Chicago platform declaring against what it termed Federal interference in local affairs which everybody knows to have been aimed at Mr. Cleveland's prompt suppression of the interference with the U. S. mail by the railroad rioters at Chicago, the most creditable thing in his administration, and with Mr. Bryan's pledge not to do likewise should he become President and a similar state of affairs be brought about again. The following words of Attorney General Harmon are worthy of the careful study of every good citizen regardless of party: "This is a question of far more serious matter than the currency or tariff or any other question now before the people, grave as they all are. Our form of government may survive a wrong decision of those questions and the people may endure for a time the evils which result from false systems of finance and taxation, but if the President has deliberately disregarded the instrument upon which the Union is founded by supplanting the authority of a sovereign State by armed force a precedent has been made which threatens our form of government, while, if a candidate for President may properly pledge himself in advance, as Mr. Bryan has done, to do nothing to protect the property, maintain the authority and enforce the laws of the United States, unless and until the officers of another government request or consent, then we really have no Federal government, for a government which is not entirely free to use force to protect and maintain itself in the discharge of its own proper functions is no government at all." Mr. Harmon also quotes the resolution offered in the Senate by Senator Daniels, of Va., who presided over the Chicago convention, voted for that platform and who is now on the stump for Bryan, endorsing in the strongest language the President's action in suppressing the railroad riots.

Col. R. F. Havens, of Terre Haute, Ind., has written a letter to a Washington friend on the political situation in that State, which he has unusually good opportunities to be familiar with, closing with this positive assertion: "I regard Indiana safe against all comers for McKinley."

The subsidizing of the official organ of the Knights of Labor, published at Washington by the Popocrats, recalls the subsidizing of the official organ of the Farmers Alliance by the Democratic National Committee in 1892. The journal of the K. of L. is now being widely distributed just as the F. A. paper was then and the result may be as fatal to the K. of L. paper as it was to the F. A. paper, which died long ago.

THE New York Sun, (Dem.) in a lengthy editorial on the Indianapolis convention and its nominees, gives this sage advice to its many readers: "It is a splendid ticket, but don't vote for it. Our advice to Democrats is to keep the main chance steadily in mind. A vote for McKinley is worth two votes for Palmer as an instrument for the defeat of Bryan. First let us save the Republic and fortify its institutions by as tremendous a majority against repudiation and revolution as patriotism can issue. Admire the spirit displayed at Indianapolis, take off your hats to John McAuley Palmer and Simon Bolivar Buckner, cheer to the top of your voice, not only as fine old types of northern and southern Democracy, but also as the advance guard of a Democratic column starting out for further victories, and then go to the polls and clear the way for the new Democracy by firing directly at Bryan a ballot for Wm. McKinley."

UNDERTAKING IN ALL ITS BRANCHES.

FALL THINGS.

Fitting up for winter is important enough to bring you to Bradford and this store. Our cost saving doesn't amount to much on a paper of tacks, but on outfitting a home it counts. Saving in dollars and worry and regrets—funny that everybody doesn't buy here.

STOVES.
In our store year ending Sept 1st we sold over 500 stoves. That's a wonderful record. Prices did it. We sell stoves cheaper—all stoves considered—than any other store in the state.

LAMPS.
Fall styles in—many a hundred kinds.
Lamps are cheap this year, and they are cheaper with us than with most stores. We have some fortunate purchases.

DINNER SETS.
Over 40 styles in stock. Prices start at $6 the set. They go as high as you want. We are selling 113 piece set of Haviland China for $28 this month—4 new styles.

TOILET SETS.
We sell toilet sets made in warranted wares from $2.25 per set up.
We have enough styles to give you, all the choice you want, and more.

HARNESS.
From $7 to $50.
Genuine rubber trimmed harness—hand made—oak stock—our price $21. A regular $30 harness. That's how we sell harness.

HORSE GOODS.
Flexible rubber back curry combs. Oil blacking and leather dressing for harness. Oat screens—wooden stable forks—horse covers—blankets—whips, etc.

DEMORIST SEWING MACHINE $19.50.
The $55 style.
These are facts. Come and we will tell you the reason.

PAINT.
Rubber Paint for those who want a lasting paint—20 colors and white. It lasts like rubber and is rubber.

Seely's New Society Perfume, Ave Maria, is an exquisite production of daintiness. It is a Society Fad among refined people from ocean to ocean, and is considered the proper thing by all persons who give perfume using more than a passing thought. Sprays from an Ave Maria atomizer captivate you at once, and, by the way, if you are at all interested in "Soap Nicety" and perfection, let us show you Seely's Almond Milk Soap, the great skin beautifier. Fine enough for Queen Victoria, but not a bit too nice for you. Our price, 10c a cake. Money cheerfully given back if you yourself do not think it the equal of any 25c Soap in the market.

Last Sunday's Grit contained an excellent cut of Mrs. Anna L. Gifford

[illegible] A. Burdick has had a new walk built in front of his residence on King

Dr. M. Salm will be here Friday Sept. 25. Read his adv on fourth page.

H. M. Choate will soon occupy the pleasant residence known as the sanitarium [illegible] M. Watkins of Ellicottville, N. Y. has accepted a position in D. C. [illegible] store.

F. P. Carter of Keating township has [illegible] his house and is otherwise improving his premises.

Reverends J. H. McCandless and [illegible] Prescott held service in Port Allegany last Sunday

Emil Thamm is having his house repaired. New floors and plastering will make it a very comfortable home.

Chicken pie supper next Thursday evening in the Sprague building. Given by the ladies of the Baptist church.

The schools were closed this week owing to the illness of many of the scholars on account of vaccination

The hustling town of Galeton in Potter county, is now a borough. Judge [illegible] recently granted the decree

Owing to rain the game of ball between the Giants and Champions which was listed for Saturday was postponed

Workmen are busily engaged in improving J. C. Gallup's property on King street formerly occupied by H. C. Wilson

Bradford county seems to be putting on airs. An exchange notes the fact that they will erect a court house to cost $[illegible].

When you have friends or relatives visiting at your house or contemplate taking a journey yourself send in the item to the MINER.

Smethport defeated Roulette in a well played game of ball last Friday by a score of 7 to 5. The game was played at [illegible]

Leon Hogarth will soon move into the house occupied at present by Ralph Burdick, at the corner of Water and [illegible] streets.

Ralph Burdick will soon move into the rooms over the store of F. G. Lindholm & Co. The rooms are being very tastefully finished.

Dewitt Hibbard, turnkey at the jail, has a rat trap that knocks the persimmons out of sight. Yesterday morning he found thirteen rats in the trap.

There are thirteen unlucky boarders at Castle Walker at the present time, but as they are in the presence of a King they evidently enjoy themselves.

Rev. A. R. Kiefer, of Bradford, preached a very eloquent sermon last Sunday night at the 5th anniversary of the dedication of St. Luke's church.

The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was administered at the M. E. church last Sunday morning. Large numbers participated, Rev. Sanborn officiating

Last week R. F. Wright had some of the largest apples on exhibition that have been seen in this place for a long time. They came from the trees of Mrs. Husted

The South Penn Oil Co's well on Cole creek known as 313, was drilled in Wednesday and is dry in the Bradford sand. They intend to drill down to the Kane sand.

No finer music was ever rendered in St. Luke's choir than the anthem last Sunday evening. The fine blending of the voices with the rich and powerful tones of the organ produced music that is seldom equalled and rarely excelled.

Major McDowell made a happy hit at Bradford last Tuesday night when he held up before the audience an old State bank bill and said, "This bill has been going around the country for over thirty-five years hunting for its redeemer."

Last Monday the daily Republican of Kane [illegible] another notch in its stick of improvements. Another column has been added and the paper has been increased in length about two inches. The able management of the Republican is determined to keep up with the times.

—Frank Frees died at his home on east Main street last night at 6.30, of typhoid fever, at the age of 23 years.

—We direct the attention of our readers to the advertisement of The Children's Bazaar, Olean, Emma A. Haller and Lucy V. Merriman, proprietors, which appears in this issue. If you want anything for the children give them a call or write.

All who have traveled over the Clermont branch of the W. N. Y. & P. R. R. speak in the highest terms of the new arrangement. It is to be hoped that the public will patronize the company sufficiently to warrant the continuance of the service.

A special train will run to Eldred on Sunday Sept. 20 on account of the opening of the new Episcopal church. Fare for the round trip 50 cents. Train will leave at 3:00 p. m. and return shortly after the service. Tickets will be furnished to the choir.

—Barnum and Bailey's circus will show at Bradford this (Friday) afternoon and evening, the rate from Smethport to Bradford and return including admission to the show will be $1.50. Special train will leave Bradford for Smethport after the evening performance.

—Ex Postmaster General Wanamaker of Philadelphia will address the Republicans of McKean county at Bradford next Tuesday evening, Sept 22. Do not fail to attend the meeting. Mr. Wanamaker is a candidate for United States Senator to succeed J. Don Cameron.

—Dr. McCoy and daughters, Misses Alice and Grace, J. W. Bouton, H. C. Wilson, O. B. Mayo and Fred Berryman, all members of St. Luke's choir visited Port Allegany last Sunday afternoon and assisted the choir of the Episcopal church of that place in their devotional exercises.

All good things come to those who wait with patience. Such is the case with [illegible] Godding. He is now the proud possessor of an [illegible] Jr. The young gent arrived last Sunday. When Mr. Godding was questioned if it was a boy he replied "You are [illegible]." All concerned are doing finely. Cigars.

We have received from the School of Agriculture of the State College an attractive pamphlet of twenty four pages describing the courses in agriculture offered by that institution. This pamphlet can be had by addressing the Dean of the School, Dr. H. P. Armsby, at State College P. O., Centre county.

Last Wednesday Mr. and Mrs. J. A. McKean, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. McKean, Mesdames Carrie Reilly, Walter Williams, D. H. Quinlan, F. F. Daly and M. M. Coleman, Miss Maggie McKean and Mr. F. D. Gallup drove to Prospect Hill and picnicked among the clouds. That they had a good time goes without saying.

— Jed Frouty has an ode in the Galeton Dispatch of last week, where he expresses himself very satisfactorily over the election in Arkansas. His attention is respectfully called to the fact that an election was held in Maine last week over which he might exercise his poetical imagination, although it is rather doubtful if he would derive much benefit from the operation.

Our own Tull pitched the Rochester team to victory last Sunday. The Syracuse team was lined up against him and although they made eleven hits off his deliveries they were all singles and well scattered. Among the sluggers on the Syracuse team was "Home-grown" Shearon, the pride of Bradford but he was unable to get a hit off Tull. Thus do we always give it to Bradford in the neck when it comes to base ball.

—The descendants of G. R. Bennett to the number of 23 were invited last Sunday by Mr. and Mrs. Frank Vickery of Farmers Valley to a family reunion on the farm of A. R. Armstrong. Frank Rumsey's bus was used as a means of conveyance and a most enjoyable time was experienced by the party in their ride to the farm. Mrs. Vickery's well known ability as a compounder of pleasing and appetizing dishes was brought into play and her dinner was pronounced the best any of the guests had enjoyed in a long time, as proof of which the horses were compelled to put forth extra exertions to bring the visitors home. Those who participated in this happy event unite in tendering through the MINER their thanks to their entertainers. All would be pleased to have it repeated soon.

—The campaign was opened by the Young Republican Club at Bradford last Tuesday night. The 16th Regt band furnished some excellent music. By 8 o'clock the Lyceum was packed. At 8:10 F. O. Schoonmaker president of the club introduced Congressman W. A. Stone of Pittsburg, who for one and one half hours kept the audience intensely interested. Col. Stone was the next speaker. His address was very forcible. Ex Congressman Major McDowell was the last speaker. His address was very pleasing. All the speakers were heartily applauded.

Wedding Bells.

CHASE—GRIGSBY.

A rather pleasant surprise was the marriage of F. Harry Chase a well known young printer of this place and Miss Mary Grigsby a popular young lady also of this place. The happy event occured at Portville last Saturday. Rev. Earl D. Shepard tied the nuptial knot that made two hearts beat as one. The young couple have the best wishes of the MINER for a long and happy life. The force extend their heartiest congratulations and thank Mr. Chase for those excellent cigars.

JONES—COVELY.

Miss Kate Covely and E. W. Jones were married at the Catholic parsonage by Rev. Father Flood last Tuesday at noon. Miss Covely is well known to the citizens of our place and Mr. Jones, during the last few years has, in company with M. I. Church, built up a lucrative market business. The happy couple left on the afternoon train for a trip through the southern part of New York and will visit Mr. Jones former home in Steuben county ere they return. The MINER joins with a host of friends in wishing them happiness in their married life.

TANNER—NEAR.

Miss Estella, the adopted daughter of William Near of East Smethport, was joined in marriage to William Tanner of Farmers Valley on Wednesday, Sept 16, by Rev. J. W. Sanborn.

KNAPP—THOMAS.

William Knapp and Miss Clara Thomas both of Buffalo were married in that city, Sept. 9. The bride was formerly a resident of this place and has a large number of friends who unite with the MINER in extending congratulations to the happy couple. They visited friends in town for a few days this week.

Ancient Art Illustrated.

Let everyone keep in mind Miss Scull's illustrated lecture on "Art, Before Greek Art," to be given at the Opera House on Tuesday, Sept. 29, at 7:45 p. m. Seats within the reserved circle, 35 cents; general admission, 25 cents. Tickets on sale at the drug stores of Messrs. A. B. Armstrong & Co., Dr. H. L. McCoy, A. W. Colegrove and H. C. Wells.

If in need of screen doors or windows of any size, shape or style, Holmes and [illegible] have them for sale.

A Bloody Affair.

Early Saturday evening the attention of the people on Main street was attracted by a disturbance in front of the Chautauqua house. Two men were lying on the side walk and apparently pummeling each other in great shape. A large crowd soon gathered around the contestants, but owing to the darkness no one seemed to know who they were or showed any inclination to stop the trouble. Suddenly one of the men jumped to his feet and exclaiming "My God, he has a knife" ran down the street with the other man in hot pursuit. It was then developed that A. B. Kidder a well known young man of this place was the one who ran away and the man in pursuit was a desperado from [illegible] named Malley Greely. Greely chased Kidder down street as far as Young's restaurant and then returned to the scene of the trouble, picked up his hat and disappeared [illegible]. He was allowed to depart unmolested as no one in the crowd appeared anxious to stop him when the fact was known that he was armed.

Kidder in the meantime had proceeded to Dr. [illegible] Chadwick's office where it was discovered that he had been cut in a frightful manner. Several long gashes on the [illegible] face [illegible] Greely had [illegible] tried to stab him. The weapon used was evidently a large clasp knife as Greely was seen to have one in his possession by Mr. Kidder Saturday afternoon. Dr. Chadwick assisted by Dr. Brown worked over the young man for several hours. During the time they were dressing the cuts Mr. Kidder never flinched or betrayed by the slightest emotion the pain it must have caused him. One of the worst cuts is on the face and extends from under his left eye nearly to the point of the chin.

Mr. Kidder was interviewed Monday and stated that although rather weak from loss of blood he did not fear any dangerous results from his wounds.

The trouble started over a bicycle which Kidder had repaired for Greely Saturday afternoon. Saturday night Greely approached Kidder and accused him of having taken the wheel. Kidder denied this and Greely struck at him, a fight ensued with the above results.

Malley Greely is well known in the criminal courts of this county. He spent the greater part of last winter in the county jail serving out a sentence for the illegal sale of liquor. It is also reported that he has been running his pig's ear at Crosby in full blast for the past several months.

Dr. "Taffy" Again.

This notorious individual, Dr. King, has again brought himself prominently before the public in a new role—that of a moralist and public benefactor. On Monday last he caused the arrest of a gentleman who is well and favorably known throughout the county on the charge of adultry.

The hearing was held Tuesday evening before Justice Knapp and the room was well filled with spectators curious to know what new villiany this alleged docto, had been hatching up. The case was opened and the Doctor who parts his whiskers in the middle, made his statement. It is so plainly evident that this statement was a tissue of lies from beginning to end that no further comment on it is necessary.

P. R. Cotter attorney for the defense, then opened his cross examination of the Doctor and before he had asked him half a dozen questions, had that gentleman (?) with the Taffy whiskers so completely vexed that he appeared to be on the verge of apoplexy. Mr. Cotter then called several gentlemen to the stand and questioned them as to the Doctor's character. They all answered with painful regularity that it was bad, very bad.

The gentleman upon whom this scoundrel had tried to vent his spite was discharged, completely exonerated from the least suspicion that any of the Doctor's assertions concerning him were true in the slightest detail.

Dr. King was then taken back to his sumptuous apartments at Castle Walker. A large crowd was gathered in front of the Justice's office and when the Doctor went by in charge of the sheriff and turnkey gave vent to their indignation in plain and emphatic terms. After hearing their remarks King can not possibly be in doubt as to the opinion the general public holds in regard to him.

Ancient Base Ball History.

It may be of interest to lovers of the national game in this place to have recalled to memory the members of the Smethport base ball team nineteen years ago. In the files of the MINER of August 30, 1877 we find the following:

"The return game between the Smethports and Port Alleganys was played at Port Allegany last Friday. The Smethports without their regular pitcher or catcher George and Fred Brownell yet with this apparent drawback they were able to win the game by four score. The Port Alleganys played a much better game than at the previous match, as is testified by the score. N. R. Bard acted as umpire and D. Teter and W. F. [illegible] scorers."

The score in this game was 20 to 16, showing that it was just as easy to trim Port Allegany nineteen years ago as it is now.

The following players participated in this game for Smethport: W. F. Peck short stop, P. Abbey pitcher, C. W. Peck, first base, F. W. Rumsey second base, N. Ramer third base, C. McCarty, left field, D. Haskill, center field, B. F. Downey right field, H. M. Jones, catcher.

The Port Allegany Empires lined up as follows: C. Bard, first base, T. Jordan, catcher, M. Lillibridge, right field, J. Reilly short stop, W. Keashner second base, L. Elliot, third base, E. White left field, D. D. Randall, pitcher, J. R. Schultz, center field.

Attention, G. A. R.

There will be a basket picnic and reunion of the Potter and McKean Counties Veteran Association in the G. A. R. grove at Coudersport, on Friday, Sept. 25, commencing at 10 o'clock a. m. There will be a business meeting at 3:00 o'clock for the election of officers for the ensuing year. All old soldiers and their families are invited to attend.

By order of
A. F. JONES, Post No. 80[illegible]
LEONARD DAVIS, Adj't.

Jesse L. Test, Esq., an old resident and highly respected citizen of our town, called this morning and after purchasing a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy, said: "If anyone asks you if this remedy will do what is claimed for it, tell them yes, and refer them to me." H. Alexander Stoke, Reynoldsville, Pa. No one can doubt the value of this medicine after giving it a fair trial. Then it is pleasant and safe to take, making it specially valuable for children. For sale by A. B. Armstrong & Co.

[illegible] Creamery.

Statement for August: Milk received, 122320 lbs. Fat contained therein, 5001.8 lbs. Butter made, 5143 lbs. Butter sold for $878.81. Cream and buttermilk sold for $47.17. For making butter, $130. Price of fat per pound, net, 15c. Average price of butter during month 17c.

Mr. Nataneel Mortonson, a well-known citizen of Ishpeming, Mich., and editor Superior Posten, who, for a long time, suffered from the most excruciating pains of rheumatism, was cured, eight years ago, by taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla, having never felt a twinge of it since.

The whole system is drained and undermined by indolent ulcers and open sores. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve speedily heals them. It is the best pile cure known. A. W. Colegrove, Smethport, A. E. Stickles, East Smethport.

"Her hair always looks so perfectly lovely." Why? Because she uses Ayer's Hair Vigor. That's the secret of its [illegible].

Choir Concert.

A goodly number of thoroughly appreciative people attended the concert at the residence of L. Rogers last Saturday night. The evening's entertainment was opened with a chorus by St. Luke's choir. Miss Agnes McCoy followed with a beautiful solo. The duo by Dr. McCoy and daughter Miss Grace, was very sweet and well received. The solo by Miss Alice McCoy elicited well merited applause and Miss Alice had to appear again before it subsided. Another chorus by the choir followed at the close of which Miss Corinne Mason sang a sweet solo entitled "Slumber Song." She was heartily encored. Wilson then sang one of DeKoven's famous pieces, "Ask What Thou Wilt" and as usual, had to sing again before the audience was satisfied. The singing of the National Hymn was suggested, in which all heartily joined. Last but not least came the refreshments, and the display of tempting viands made all wish that they might again be favored with such good things at the hands of St. Luke's choir. These concerts are always of a high order and Smethport can well feel proud of its able musicians.

It is not unusual for druggists to recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their customers. Many of them have used it themselves, or in their families and know from personal experience its great value in the treatment of coughs, colds and croup. They know too that their customers are their best friends and naturally wish to give them the most reliable medicine they have for these ailments. Messrs. Dougherty Bros. prominent druggists of Indiana, Pa. say: "We sell more of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy than of any other cough syrup, and always take pleasure in recommending it to our customers." Mr. H. M. Urey the popular druggist at Fredonia, Pa. who has sold Chamberlain's Cough Remedy for several years, says, "I can truly say that it is the best cough medicine in the market. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by A. B. Armstrong & Co.

The Discovery Saved His Life.

Mr. G. Caillouette, Druggist, Beaversville, Ill., says: "To Dr. King's New Discovery I owe my life. Was taken with la grippe and tried all the physicians for miles about, but of no avail and was given up and told I could not live. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in my store I sent for a bottle and began its use and from the first dose began to get better, and after using three bottles was up and about again. It is worth its weight in gold. We won't keep store or house without it." Get a free trial at A. W. Colegrove's and A. B. Armstrong & Co's drug stores.

Rev. Mark Minser, a Dunkard minister of Deckers Point, Pa., says he can recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm to anyone in need of a good liniment, and that he considers it the best he has ever used. Pain Balm is especially valuable for rheumatism, lame back, sprains, swellings, cuts, bruises, burns and scalds. It is one of the most remarkable remedies in existence, and its effects will both surprise and delight you. For sale at 25 and 50 cents per bottle by A. B. Armstrong & Co.

There's A Big Difference

between cheap shoes and shoes cheap. The former is false economy—the latter true. Don't forget there's as much evil in paying too little as paying too much. Many cases of so-called heart disease, are only cases of acid fermentation in the stomach. The irritation from the acid hinders the action of the heart, through the pneumogastric nerve, and very often the excessive restraining power of this peculiarly acting nerve, becomes a very serious matter, the heart makes the greatest effort to do its work, but there is shortness of breath which cannot be made up for and the feeling throughout the chest is very distressing. Sometimes the acid arises and causes an acrid smarting in the throat, at other times the burning is up and down the chest.

Another stomach trouble is that form of dyspepsia which gives pain after eating. Persons with this disease seem to have but a scant measure of nerve strength, when food is being digested, the stomach needs the concentration of all of the nerve and brain force, and if reading or close thought is attempted soon after eating, the stomach commences that intolerable aching which dyspeptics dread so much, when, the only immediate relief appears to be to stop the mental activity and get up and move around. In such cases there is evidently for the time being, too little nerve power to divide between the stomach and the brain, each one alone needs it all to enable it to perform its labor.

There are two properties possessed by Dr Day's Stomach and Nerve Tonic which constitute it a cure for all of the above derangements. One, is its power of purifying and sweetening the stomach and stopping the formation of gas and acid, the other, the giving of more real nerve force and strength. Soon comes better digestion and better nutrition, then a general renewal of life and [illegible].

> "A depreciation of the currency is always attended by a loss to the laboring classes. This portion of the community have neither time nor opportunity to watch the ebbs and flows of the money market. Engaged from day to day in their useful toils, they do not perceive that, although their wages are nominally the same, or even somewhat higher, they are greatly reduced, in fact, by the rapid increase of currency, which, as it appears to make money abound, they are at first inclined to consider a blessing."

The Pensioner's Dollar.

You say you want a little about the old soldiers? Well, my friends, the crisis which is approaching now, the question before the country now, appeals to the old soldier as much as it did in 1861. I am not afraid that any man who has risked his life in his nation's behalf is going to be influenced by the arguments that are addressed to the soldiers now by the financiers, etc., etc.—Mr Bryan, at Milwaukee, Sept. 5.

Not one word in answer to the question whether the purchasing power of the monthly pension payments to 970,000 pensioners would be reduced by the free coinage of 50-cent silver dollars. Not a word as to the effect upon pension payments hereafter of the "extermination" of the 100-cent dollar because it is worth too much and buys too much.

We do not assume that veteran soldiers are thinking of nothing but pensions, but they should compel Mr Bryan to say frankly what would be the effect of free coinage upon the pensioner's dollar. Make him answer the question one way or the other. A frank answer would be interesting to many other persons in addition to those whose names are on the pension rolls.

Bryan's Bad Taste.

[illegible] reputed culture Mr [illegible] a wonderful lack of [illegible] taste. This feature [illegible] speeches. His [illegible] orator did not use [illegible] when he made [illegible] point. Such a statement [illegible] only one sense of decency [illegible] Even a nonrebel [illegible] from such irreverence [illegible] it seems to be Mr Bryan's [illegible] to say such things. It is [illegible] with the idea that [illegible] to arouse the poor against the [illegible]. Is such the kind of a man the American people desire to set in the chair of Washington and Adams and Harrison?—Hollidaysburg Register.

Abram S. Hewitt proposes to vote direct for McKinley and honest money. He is not going to waste his vote on a third ticket.

ANDREW JACKSON'S EIGHTH ANNUAL MESSAGE.

"A depreciation of the currency is always attended by a loss to the laboring classes. This portion of the community have neither time nor opportunity to watch the ebbs and flows of the money market. Engaged from day to day in their useful toils, they do not perceive that, although their wages are nominally the same, or even somewhat higher, they are greatly reduced, in fact, by the rapid increase of currency, which, as it appears to make money abound, they are at first inclined to consider a blessing."

The world's silver is worth $4,000,000,000 now. Bryan's proposition is that this country can add [illegible] to its value by taking the world's yearly product, which is in coinage value about $215,000,000, or 166,000,000 ounces. Does this look rational? Will the use of $215,000,000 add $[illegible] to the value of anything worth only $[illegible]?

Thomas Jefferson not only insisted that the dollar, whether of gold or silver, should contain a dollar's worth of metal, the amount to be determined by the market prices, but he went further. He had an inborn honest detestation of the coin clipping methods by which governments had sought to defraud the governed. He denied the right of congress to debase the coin by a reduction in the value.

Mr. James R. Garfield writes from Ohio on a point that has occurred to many Republicans. In his effort to array class against class Mr Bryan has appealed most strongly to the farmers. If they forsake him his election is an impossibility. Possibly many do not realize the difficulty that will confront a new Republican administration. With an adverse senate, all means for increasing our revenues to a point above expenditures will be confused with the silver question. The contest arising on that point is the most serious aspect of next year's political problem.

There is nothing dishonoring in the fact that one earns his bread in the sweat of his face.—William J. Bryan's Labor Day speech at Chicago.

And a man may without dishonor earn his bread by the sweat of his jaw if the manner and matter of his speaking are wholesome. But whenever Mr. Bryan can get a crowd of American workingmen to listen to him he harangues about the "struggling masses," the "greatness of the common people," and he tells the farmer that he is the equal of the banker, the workingman that he is as good as the railroad president. This is the talk of a demagogue, and it does harm because it implants in the minds of Bryan's auditors the idea that they are being oppressed and downtrodden, and that bankers and railroad presidents are striving to deprive them of their freedom and equality. Bryan means to implant these ideas. It is his trade to sow discontent and stir up class feeling.—New York Times.

A Note from the Editor.

The editor of a leading State writes: "If you had seen my wife last June and were to see her to-day you would not [illegible] she was the same woman. BRITISH MINE OWNERS.

Their Probable Profit If the Silver Agitation Should Succeed.

STOCKS HELD BY ENGLAND.

World's Product Theirs and They Would Gain by Free Coinage.

SOME BRITISH EMISSARIES.

Edward Atkinson Wants to Know Whether the Permanent Silver Lobby of Able and Unscrupulous Men Have Been Paid to Work in Washington These Many Years with British Silver.—A Pertinent Query Bearing Upon the Present Campaign.

British owners now hold a large part of the silver stocks of this country, which produce about 60,000,000 ounces of silver a year. British owners now hold nearly all the other productive silver mines of the world in Australia, Mexico, South America, and elsewhere. Their product, aside from mines in this country, is 115,000,000 ounces a year. The whole silver product comes to 175,000,000 ounces, and is increasing at recent prices. Its bullion value is $115,500,000. The value to which the silvercrat party proposes to raise it by a force bill is $225,750,000. Difference, or additional profit, $110,250,000 a year on the present increasing product. That profit is the motive force of the silvercrat party, three-fourths or more in the British interest. The increase of this mostly British product did not stop when the market price went below 50 cents on a dollar in gold. Why should it? On the official report of the Broken Hill mine of New South Wales, belonging to British owners, it makes 12,000,000 ounces a year, besides a lot of lead, copper and gold.

At the market price of silver bullion it has paid its British stockholders in eight years, on a capital of less than $2,000,000, over $40,000,000 in profits, of which over $25,000,000 was in gold coin, the rest in stocks. The silvercrat party, under the direction of Mr. F. G. Newlands, of Nevada, the leader, and Mr. W. J. Bryan, of Nebraska, the follower, proposes to double the market value of that bullion. That would give the British owners of the Broken Hill mine an added profit on that one mine, in gold, of more than $10,000,000 a year. That mine produces only 15 per cent. of the world's product, which is mostly British. About an equal profit would fall to the rest of the silver mines, mostly British. Here are two or three little sums for Messrs. Newlands and Bryan to do.

The British Would Profit.

Question 1.—If we, acting on behalf of the silvercrat party, can raise the price of the 12,000,000 ounces of silver from the Broken Hill mine from 66 cents to $1.29 per ounce, how much profit shall we, "incidentally," make for the British owners?

Answer 1.—$1.29 minus 66 cents equals 63 cents. 12,000,000 ounces multiplied by 63 cents equals $7,560,000.

Question 2.—If we raise the price of the rest of the silver bullion product of 163,000,000 ounces, mostly British, from 66 cents to $1.29 an ounce, how much additional profit shall we "incidentally" take out of the pockets of the American workman and put into the pockets of the silvercrats, mostly British?

Answer 2.—$1.29 minus 66 equals 63 cents. 163,000,000 ounces multiplied by 63 cents equals $102,690,000.

Question 3.—If the British owners of the Broken Hill mine have made $40,000,000 on 12,000,000 ounces in eight years at the market rate of silver, how much will the mostly British owners make in the next eight years on 175,000,000 ounces a year at $1.29 an ounce, when we have secured their force bill to bring the value of the silver bullion of the world up to that price?

Answer—Mr Bryan is now "incidentally" figuring this out, and will give the answer in his next speech.

Mr Bryan says that those "incidental" (see the last part of his address in New York) profits must not prevent the voters of this country from supporting the silvercrat party. Mr Bryan goes about the country like a small roaring lion braying about British bankers, and alleging that his opponents are subjecting the money system of this country to British influence. If that sort of talk is taken out of his speeches, what is there left?

Now, if the silvercrat orators regard this sort of sauce suitable for the goose whom they expect to drive, may not a sauce of British silver be rightly served to that kind of gander?

If the whole body of persons who are in good repute in this country to whom have been delegated the highest positions of trust in the custody of the great enterprises of this country, as well as all the conduct of life insurance companies, savings banks, and the like, are actuated by British influence in their efforts to keep the savings of the people as good as British gold, what shall be said of the silvercrats of evil repute who are trying to debase the American dollar to the level of the Mexican dollar and to reduce American wages to the rates of Mexican wages?

British Silver Emissaries.

Is their motive to be attributed to British silver?

Under what influence have sudden conversions been worked in Massachusetts?

Under what influence have the bosses of the political machines been led from the true Democratic party to the silvercratic party?

Has the permanent silver lobby of able and unscrupulous men been paid to work in Washington these many years with British silver?

Who got up the book of lies entitled "Coin's Financial School" and spread it by millions over the country?

Have British emissaries been working for years for the "incidental" (see Mr. Bryan) profits of the British silver interest?

Let these silvercrat traducers who prate about British gold and British influence in support of the credit and honor of this nation take warning lest British silver and its influence be brought home to themselves to their own discredit and dishonor.

What Daniel Webster said of a similar body of cheap money men sixty years ago fits this case, with the change of two words, which I have put in brackets:

"He who tampers with the currency robs labor of its bread. He panders, indeed, to greedy capital, which is keen sighted and may shift for itself, but he beggars labor, which is honest, unsuspecting, and too busy with the present to calculate for the future. The prosperity of the working classes lives, moves, and has its being in established credit and a steady medium of payment. All sudden changes destroy it. Honest industry never comes in for any part of the spoils in that scramble, which takes place when the currency of a country is disordered. Did wild schemes and projects ever benefit the industrious? Did violent fluctuations ever do good to him who depends on his daily labor for his daily bread? Did irredeemable bank paper [silver dollars] ever enrich the laborious? Certainly never. All these things may gratify greediness for sudden gain or the rashness of daring speculation, but they can bring nothing but injury and distress to the homes of patient industry and honest labor."—Edward Atkinson in New York Times.

Vote early.

If you have ever seen a little child in the agony of summer complaint you can realize the danger of the trouble and appreciate the value of instantaneous relief always afforded by DeWitt's Colic & Cholera Cure. For dysentery and diarrhea it is a reliable remedy. We could not afford to recommend this as a cure unless it were a cure. A. W. Colegrove, Smethport; E. L. Stickler, East Smethport.

THIS MEANS YOU.

Do you own horses or cattle? Pulsifer's Veterinary Medicines for horses and cattle are warranted to substantiate each claim made for them. Your dealer is authorized to refund the money in every instance of failure to effect a cure of any disease specified on our labels, if used according to directions. You don't risk a cent by a trial. What more can you ask?

PULSIFER'S COLIC CURE.

This preparation is offered to the public as a portable, harmless, yet certain substitute for the old-fashioned bulky remedies heretofore employed in the treatment of that most dangerous disease COLIC. A syringe for administering the dose accompanies each bottle, and the whole package is so compact that it can be easily carried in the pocket. The price at which it is sold is much lower than any other colic cure on the market, thus reducing the actual cost of curing a case of colic to five or ten cents. The dose is only thirty drops, given without diluting.

You can't fool with colic, nor waste time hunting up medicines. Veterinaries can't always be found when wanted, nor are drug stores always open. Pulsifer's colic cure is all the veterinary or drug store you need. It should be kept in the stable ready for use.

There is more fatality among horses from colic than from any other cause. Unless some immediate relief is afforded the chances for recovery are slight. Inflammation sets in, resulting almost inevitably in death. Pulsifer's colic cure never fails to cure Spasmodic, Flatulent Colic, or Stoppage of the Water, if treatment is begun within one hour of the first attack. It has often cured where no relief has been given for hours. Pulsifer's colic cure avoids delays. Delays mean dead horses. Horses cost money. A concise manual describing the symptoms of the ordinary diseases to which the horse is subject, together with the simple method of treating the same. Mailed to any address on receipt of two-cent stamp.
